Bonds aggregating $75,000 which were a part of the stolen shipment of $2,000,000 of registered mail which was seized when a mail truck was held up at Broadway and Leonard street last October, were recovered Wednesday by the post office inspectors when they arrested Louis Wolf, aged 33; John Wolfe, 38, and Jacob B. Price, 59, on a charge of attempting to pass the bonds for sale. This became known yesterday when the three men were arraigned before S. M. Hitchcock, United States Commissioner, and were held in $25,000 bail each for a hearing next Thursday.

The arrests resulted after six months of tedious investigation and work by agents under Chief Inspector William E. Cochran and Inspector James J. Doran. The robbery caused the placing of United States Marines on all mail trucks and trains in this city and the use of heavily armed trucks by many large banking and industrial houses.

The captures of Wolf and Wolfe were made at the point of the pistol and took place in the offices of a large brokerage house. Price, who lived at 604 West 17th street, was taken after the arrest of his two companions while he was attempting to pass other securities with another broker.

Quick Roundup Predicted.

A quick roundup of all those concerned in the Leonard street holdup is expected soon as the result of the evidence obtained yesterday.

For a long time the suspected men evaded contact with any of the "emissaries" sent out by the Post Office Department. The bonds were being disposed of, but in small lots and at long intervals. The agents believe that the major part of the shipment is still intact and will be recovered soon. Toward the end of last week word came to the postal men that a man would see them regarding the disposal of these bonds.

The agents had obtained the aid of the brokerage house and posed as operators willing to buy stocks that had been disposed of quickly or rapidly. Accordingly, they say, one of the trio made a proposition to sell the $75,000 bonds for 60 per cent. of their value, although nearly all are selling at par or higher.

More than a score of detectives from the Post Office Department were planted in various parts of the building in which are the brokerage office, and as the agents came, customers and officials for the afternoon. This was done after several days of rehearsing by the agents, and nothing untoward was noticed by the two men who attempted to dispose of the bonds.

Surrounded by Police.

At 3 o'clock Louis Wolf and his companion, John Wolfe, entered the office. Both men were dressed in civilian clothes. The offices were run by an agent, and the corridors of the building had several postal inspectors heavily armed, waiting for any attempt to escape. Walking up to Inspector Doran, who had acted as the "broker," Wolfe asked to be shown "the color of the money." This was done, the $50,000 in bills were transferred, the bonds were handed over and then the signal came from Doran to close in on the bond sellers.

When Doran said "Hands up, boys!" his words were accompanied by the drawing of a dozen revolvers by his agents. They raised their hands, were searched, handcuffed and taken to the General Post Office. In the office of Inspector Doran the two men were put through a grilling. Price, who had been "doing business" in the financial district, also was put through the lengthy questioning.

The identity of the driver of the automobile that carried the holdup men in the Leonard street job is said to have been ascertained by a prisoner, and much of the loot taken from the mail truck will be brought to light soon, the detectives stated. Inspectors Doran and Cochran considered the captures as the key to the whole robbery, and possibly to several other mail thefts that have occurred within the last six months in and about New York city.

A checkup of the securities which were "bought" by the agents showed that they were all from the shipment of October 24, when the truck driven by Frank Havranek was shunted into a side street by the mail truck and looted of its $2,000,000 cargo of bonds, jewels and other valuable mail. The detectives believe each of the accused men gave a fictitious address.

Willetta Huggins, 17, Reads Newspaper Headlines and Picks Gray Haired Woman Out of Pictured Group.

CHICAGO, April 27.—Blue is Willetta Huggins's favorite color, although it does not have as pleasant a smell as some other colors. It smells like ink, but Miss Huggins, who is 17, deaf and slightly blind, and a pupil of the Wisconsin School for the Blind, says she doesn't mind the way blue smells—it's a pretty color.

All colors smell differently, Miss Huggins explained, after giving a remarkable demonstration before the Chicago Medical Society.

Green smells like glass," she explained, although she didn't say just what glass smells like; "blue smells like ink; pink like wool; black smells like a newspaper and white really has no smell."

The girl was able to read newspaper headlines by holding her fingers over the page, and could distinguish figures in newspaper pictures by smelling the amount of ink on different positions of the picture. She "saw" one picture with her fingers and picked out a woman with gray hair accurately.

She demonstrated that she could hear a lecture or an orchestra concert by holding a sheet of paper to the air and she can hear over the telephone by putting her fingers over the receiver. She can tell the denomination of a bank note by feeling the number.

Willetta, well proportioned and attractive, has bobbed her hair.

HYLAN SHAMED CITY, ASSERTS CHANDLER

Representative in Reply Says
Washington Rightly Sized
'Pigmy.'

The phrase—"a bird of passage"—used by Mayor Hylan in a criticism of Walter M. Chandler, member of Congress, served as a cue for the latter when he replied to the Mayor last night at an American Legion dinner in the Cafe Severin.

The trouble grew out of the fact that Representative Chandler undertook to question the Mayor, while in Washington on Tuesday on the latter's assertion that he had a mandate from the people of New York city to favor the Bacharach bill to limit the jurisdiction of Federal power in rate making cases.

He said that the Mayor was wholly ignorant of the Bacharach bill. Then stating that he regarded it as unconstitutional, he said:

"But what is the Constitution to Hylan when it comes to his personal whims, caprices, and political plans, and when he desires to have his personal desires met by a New York Congressman? He owes him no allegiance and has no personal or political respect for him? Hylan offended the members of the committee by his light and flippant reference to the Constitution and by his crude and vulgar attempt to deride the judges of the courts."

"This Hylan matter is a matter of geography. In the City Hall of New York, surrounded by his satellites and sycophants, Hylan is somewhat of a pigmy. In Washington, when confronted by the Judiciary Committee of the House, made up in the main of brainy and intellectual men, his diminutive mental qualities soon became apparent and he was scorned and laughed at."

"It is a pity that New York is represented by such a Mayor. He disgusted the people at Washington with his colossal arrogance and exhibition of petty self-aggrandizement."

A visitor in the committee room was heard to ask after the adjournment of the committee: "Is that the best New York can do? By what political accident did a mental midget of that kind manage to slip into the chair of Strong and Low, of McClellan and Mitchell?"

ART, BUSES AND RECALL DISCUSSED BY HYLAN

Guest of Press Club, He Bel-labors Some Newspapers.

Members of the New York Press Club entertained Mayor Hylan at luncheon yesterday. Mr. Hylan attacked the management of the principal newspapers in the city that opposed his election.

At the end of his talk Mr. Hylan agreed to answer questions. In response to the first one the Mayor said that the present bus routes were making money for the concession holders, sometimes as much as $70 a day on a five-cent fare.

There are a lot of very rigid, old-fashioned, and antiquated rules and statutes on the law books, Mr. Hylan said and if some of the judges, particularly those who grant injunctions against the city operating bus lines to compete with existing franchise holders, do not mend their ways he is going to advocate the application of the recall.

Then the Mayor switched to art and the Rough Guy in front of City Hall. He was asked if his administration was going to set itself up as an art critic or abide by the decision of the Art Commission.

"I want to say that if it is condemned by a sufficient number we will find some way to remove it. We can remove it over night."

72,107 ARRESTS MADE HERE IN THREE MONTHS

Increase of 9,500 Compared With Last Year's Figures.

Police Commissioner Enright sent to Mayor Hylan yesterday a report for the first three months of this year, showing total arrests by the uniformed and detective forces of 72,107, as against 62,607 in the first quarter of 1921.

In the first quarter of 1922 there were 8,516 complaints, as against 7,842 in 1921, and 2,752 complaints of misdemeanors, against 3,507. Arrests by the detective division for felonies in 1922 numbered 3,223 and in 1921 3,001.

In the same period the uniformed force made 1,654 and 1,818 arrests, respectively. On the other hand, the uniformed force arrested about 900 more persons for misdemeanors in 1922 than in 1921.

The special services division and special squads made 2,632 arrests for gambling, vice and similar crimes in 1922 and 2,265 in 1921. The traffic division in the first quarter of this year arrested 25,834 persons and caused the collection of $191,410 in fines. In this period more vehicles had 154 persons, against 181 in 1921.

KILLS MAN AT TABLE, CALMLY STEPS AWAY

Police Suspect Woman Involved in Strange Murder of Friend by Friend.

A man walked into the restaurant run by George Crispino at 314 East Twelfth street late yesterday afternoon and made his way between the tables until he came to one at which Tony Salisili of 350 East Thirteenth street, known as "Pimple Faced Tony," sat before a steaming bowl of spaghetti. Salisili jumped to his feet, but the man told him to sit down, and Salisili obeyed.

With extraordinary deliberation the man drew a revolver from his pocket, while Salisili in the chest and in the other patrons of the restaurant looked on curiously, but they made no move. It was not their fight; it did not matter to them if Salisili got hurt so long as they were not disturbed. So there was nobody to stop the man when he pointed his gun at Salisili and pulled the trigger.

He fired five times. Three of the bullets hit Salisili in the chest and the shoulders, and when the third struck him he fell forward over the table. The last two shots missed on this count, and lodged in the walls of the restaurant. After he had emptied his gun the assassin shook his victim once or twice, and when there was no response he placed the revolver on the table beside the dead man and turned and walked from the room.

He walked into the street, where a hundred children were dancing in the closing hours of a celebratory honor of an Italian saint. The children had not heard the shots, and neither had any one else on the street, because a band was blaring as the children were dancing. Several persons who saw him said the man stood and watched the dance for a time, and then walked calmly and casually down the street. Fifteen minutes later the police of the Fifth street station heard of the murder and Capt. McNeil and Patrolman James Rudy went there in an automobile. They took Crispino and two of his employees, John Delo and Frank Cribari of 2121 Second avenue, to the station to question them.

Crispino and the others told the police that until a short time ago the gunman and his victim had dined together at the restaurant, but that recently they had begun to come in at different times.

There was a woman in the place when the shooting occurred. She is said to have watched it and then to have walked leisurely into the street, showing no excitement. Unless she had something to do with it the police have no idea why Salisili was murdered. His father said that so far as he knew his son had no enemies.

Salisili was taken into custody during the time of the shooting, but was released after a few hours. The detectives say that case had nothing to do with the shooting.

THEODORE N. VAIL'S LIBRARY TO BE SOLD

Collection Includes Many Rare Colored Plate Books.

Of more than passing interest in the book world is the approaching sale of the late Theodore N. Vail's library, which will be offered to the public at the Anderson Galleries during the coming week. The sale starts on the afternoon of Tuesday and continues each day for the rest of the week. Night sales will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday.

According to the will of Mr. Vail, the entire library was to have been passed on intact to Morristown, N. J., but because of a failure on the part of the town to assume certain obligations the bequest was not carried out and the gift was diverted to auction room channels.

The library comprises a large variety of the choicest colored plate books by Alcock, Craikbank and Rowlandson; an extensive collection of the first editions of Dickens and Thackeray, the former with manuscripts and original drawings; the "Kilnarnock" Burns; Parson's "Lost" with the first title page; the edition of "The Pilgrimage of Ignatius" by George Washington, including the original manuscript of the "Dictionary of Arts and Sciences," with his autograph and book plate in each volume; original letters of John Eliot, the famous, "Apostle to the Indians"; the four folios of Shakespeare; and a rare collection of original letters and documents relating to the constitution.

STUDYING SOCIOLOGY COSTS HIM FOUR TOES

Dr. Coe's Son Meets With Painful Mishap Out West.

Arthur Paul Coe, 22, a post-graduate student of the University of California and a son of Dr. Henry Clark Coe of 59 East Fifty-eighth street, lost four toes when he fell under the wheels of a freight train near Stockton, Cal., yesterday, according to word received here.

The young man, said his father, has been a student of sociology and set out to "beat his way" East as an experiment. A few days ago he worked in a municipal wood yard at Oakland for the same reason.

Coe at the start of the war went to France with an ambulance unit and later was transferred to the American Expeditionary Force, becoming a second lieutenant of Field Artillery. The Croix de Guerre was awarded to him for heroic action with the French in Verdun. He was graduated from the University of California last year and since has been taking a post-graduate course there. A scholarship in L'Ecole Polytechnique, near Paris, recently was awarded to him in a college competition and he had planned to sail soon for France.

N.Y. STOCK FIRM FOR BUCKETING TAIT

Straus & Co., 55 Broadway,
Suspended for Handling
'Unfair' Account.

ONE MORE FAILURE.

Head of R. H. McMasters &
Co. Admits He Was Short on Experience.

GOT $450 A WEEK SALARY

Receiver Hopes to Get Flatbush
Home to Help Meet Liabilities of $500,000.

Seymour L. Cromwell, president of the New York Stock Exchange, announced at the opening of business yesterday that as a result of the institution's drive against brokerage houses which deal unfairly with the public, Straus & Co., 55 Broadway, had been suspended from the exchange for a year.

The Straus firm was accused of doing business for a bucket shop, an act which the governing committee some months ago put down as "detrimental to the best interests of the exchange."

J. O. Straus is the floor member of the firm, the other partners being Charles B. Margentime and Max Straus, the latter a special partner. The firm was admitted to the exchange in November, 1919.

The plan announced three weeks ago by Mr. Cromwell, under which statements of the financial condition of each member of the exchange shall be presented to it at least twice a year, has been worked out and an amendment to the constitution adopted by the governing committee for submission to the membership.

Speculation Ban Extended.

The regulation of the exchange which prohibits members from accepting a speculative account for a clerk of the exchange or of a member, a bank, etc., has been extended to cover clerks of any corporation in which the exchange owns the majority of stock, such as the Stock Clearing Corporation, the New York Quotation Company, etc.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States District Court against the J. A. Haines Company, Inc., securities, of 40 Rector street. The petition was signed by Harold Newbold, who claimed $780.

John L. Lytle was appointed receiver for the bankrupt stock brokerage house of R. H. McMasters & Co., 55 Broadway, which failed two days after the petitioning creditors included Charles J. Dorner, who claims $8,000; Carl Oehlhauf, $3,400, and Max Nessel, $2,700.

Brokerage Affairs Revealed.

Further revelations on the recent series of brokerage failures was obtained in testimony about the brokerage firm of R. H. McMasters & Co., 55 Broadway, which failed two days after the petitioning creditors included Charles J. Dorner, who claims $8,000; Carl Oehlhauf, $3,400, and Max Nessel, $2,700.

The bankruptcy was due to the inexperience of Roy H. MacMasters and the withdrawal of the support of his stepfather, John P. MacMasters, a veteran broker of Wall street and silent partner in the firm, said the junior MacMasters at a hearing before Judge P. Stephen MacMaster, receiver. It was learned, took the stand, knowing he was being sought by the police of this city and Richmond, Va., and told how his stepfather abandoned him when the firm was heading toward bankruptcy.

Young MacMasters was the only witness at a hearing in the office of David W. Kahn, attorney for the receiver, 120 Broadway. MacMaster professedly had acted "the man" and that he had done everything possible to aid the receiver.

The young broker told of the manner in which MacMasters, Sr., raised his own salary at will from $100 to $550 a week. But the witness admitted his stepfather conducted the business and that although he had been under the supervision of the elder man for two years he had not "learned the business" so he could be self-dependent.

Young MacMasters testified that in the last days of the business he placed his personal bank account of $30,000 into the firm and said that his stepfather had added about $37,000. With this as a nucleus he was able to borrow from "friends in the Street" sums varying from $5,000 to $10,000, which made the total $100,000.

When Mr. Kahn tried to delve into the house accounts of the firm, execution of orders and the allegation that stocks were sold against the accounts of customers was blocked by Roy MacMasters, who claimed his constitutional rights. He declined to answer these questions because of a pending criminal action in Virginia.

Trying to Get Flatbush Home.

Mr. Stephenson, it was explained, has been anxious to establish the responsibility of the elder MacMasters, as his home at 198 Arzyle road, Flatbush, is said to be valuable and may be sought as assets of the firm, which to date are between $50,000 and $100,000, to meet liabilities of $500,000.

Roy MacMasters said his salary for four or five months before the failure was $450 a week and previous to that he drew $300 a week. He told of possessing $100,000 worth of stock, but said these were turned over to the cashier a month before the smash. His automobile, he said, was in the hands of the receiver. He admitted receiving a scarfpin from H. P. Bachman & Co., but denied it was worth $2,000, as he said he had sold it for $25.

The next hearing will be at the office of Peter B. Olney, referee, Tuesday afternoon.

Clarence H. Haynes, broker, of 50 Linden avenue, Brooklyn; Joseph J. Borie, broker, of Cretion Falls, N. Y., and William L. Payne, an insurance man, of New Rochelle, were held for trial in Special Sessions under $1,000 bail each by Magistrate Simpson in Tombs Court on a conspiracy charge.

The complaint was Paul V. Zimmerman of Stamford, Conn., treasurer of the Carlisle Tire Corporation, who alleged that the defendants misappropriated money for the purpose of making collateral for a loan of $30,000. Zimmerman said the defendants sold the stock without his consent. It is understood, however, that the certificates were returned to the tire corporation.

Will Sell Fatima's Gem to Pay Uncle Sam's Lien

PRINCESS FATIMA'S celebrated diamond, the Darya-Gai-Noor, which Solicitor M. P. Andrews of the Custom House means river of glory, will be sold at public auction on Tuesday at 14 Vesey street by Sheriff Percival E. Nagle to satisfy the first lien of $1,400 held by the United States Government for duty.

Other liens will be paid from the proceeds of the sale, including that of Mangan S. Davis, who loaned the Princess $2,000 to pay her board and traveling expenses here. The Princess recently refused to leave the country at the request and expense of the British Government. The diamond is of 44 carats and a fraction, and some estimates of its value have gone into the hundreds of thousands.

DRY LAW SHUTS ENGEL'S NOTED OLD CHOP HOUSE

Thirty-sixth Street Place to End Career on Monday.

The doors of Engel's chop house, 61 West Thirty-sixth street, will be closed at the usual time next Monday night, and Capt. Philip Engel and Adam Engel and Old Charlie, who has been a waiter at Engel's for more than thirty-five years, will go home as usual. But they will not go back for Monday night will be the last one. Engel's will go out of business, and when it does one of the oldest and best known places of its sort in the United States will have closed its doors.

Capt. Philip, Adam and Old Charlie are giving up the ship because it has been scuttled by prohibition and is being pounded on the rocks of high rentals. It was the ale and beer and the oysters that made Engel's famous, and only the oysters remain, and they are not enough to attract sufficient trade to make the place pay even expenses.

The Engels have been noted restaurateurs in New York for more than half a century. They started as waiters in the old Philadelphia Hotel in Battery place, on the site of the present Whitehall Building, just before the civil war.

'COWARDLY' EVADER GETS $100 FROM BRYAN

Says Professor Dodging Evolution Is Worth It.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 27.—William Jennings Bryan has sent a check for $100 to Dr. R. C. Spangler, professor of botany in West Virginia University as a reward for answering certain questions on evolution put by Mr. Bryan in a recent address here.

Mr. Bryan had challenged any university professor to harmonize the Bible and the principles of evolution, and Dr. Spangler undertook the task. The letter carrying the check was addressed to Dr. O. B. Baylor of Morgantown and said in part:

"Mr. Spangler's letter does not answer a single question that I asked. He tries to make it appear that evolution is consistent with the Bible which evolutionists do not as a rule believe. "I am not willing, however, that he should claim that I refused to pay the $100. It is worth $100 to me to see a college professor guilty of cowardly evasion and you will please give him the check and at the same time ask him to answer the questions which I inclose."

Indeed, he was five questions, the first of which read:

"Are you willing to put in writing and sign a statement declaring that you believe you are the descendant of an ape?"

Dr. Spangler said to-day he had not decided whether he would keep the check.

WANAMAKER TELLS MEN TO VOTE AS WIVES SAY

Sees Too Much Partisanship;
Too Little Patriotism.

John Wanamaker, president of the World's Sunday School Association, in addressing its executive committee at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday, declared there is too much partisanship in this country and not enough patriotism. Women, he said, have suffered more than men from bad laws, and he said that women should take their husbands to the polls instead of waiting for their husbands to take them. And men, he continued, should vote as their wives would vote.

"If women do not vote this year their consciences will make them vote next," he added.

It was announced that W. L. Landis of Philadelphia was chosen general secretary to succeed Frank L. Brown, who died March 23 last, and that the next convention would be held in Glasgow in 1924.

HENRY FORD LOSES CAR; POLICE ASK WHAT KIND

'Why, a Ford, of Course,' Said the Manufacturer.

DETROIT, Mich., April 27.—Henry Ford called the police by telephone to-day and notified them of the loss of his automobile last night.

"What kind of a car was it?" the police clerk asked.

"Why, a Ford, of course," Mr. Ford answered.

The manufacturer went to one of his factories and took a new car from a store room this morning. The police have no trace of the old one.

FATHER OF SIX FREED; TO PAY FINE BY 1939

Still Operator Agrees to Turn
Over $1,000 in 16 Years.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE NEW YORK HERALD, SANDUSKY, Ohio, April 27.—Stephen Morgan, father of six children, was released from the Erie county jail to-night upon agreeing to pay a fine of $1,000 imposed for operating a still. He is to pay it in installments of $5 a month, covering a period of sixteen years and eight months. He will be making monthly payments until about January 1, 1939.

The testimony of yesterday's session consisted of evidence given by witnesses reading the list of prices among different manufacturers of Portland cement.

AGED PAIR POISONED BY ENEMY, IS BELIEF

Autopsy Indicates Murder of Fremont M. Jackson and Wife in Brooklyn.

Because of the many mysterious features surrounding the deaths of Fremont Madison Jackson and his wife in the Hotel Margaret, Brooklyn, where their bodies were found Wednesday morning, the District Attorney of Kings county and the Brooklyn Detective Bureau have begun an investigation. Friends of Mr. Jackson, who was 75 years old and a retired carpet merchant, insist that he and his wife did not commit suicide, and expressed the belief that they were killed by some one who gave them poison in their food.

An autopsy performed yesterday by Dr. Charles Wuest, assistant medical examiner, established beyond question that Mr. Jackson and his wife died from the effects of poison, whose nature cannot be definitely determined until an analysis has been made of the contents of their stomachs. Physicians attending the autopsy, however, said that they found indications of cyanide of potassium, alcohol and either heroin or morphine. Death might have been caused by any of these. Dr. Wuest said a statement issued by the district attorney, "that death was due to some poison, the character of which can be determined only by analysis. Whether the poison was administered stealthily and in small doses I cannot say, but the indication that some active toxic agent was employed is quite evident."

"The stomachs of both Mr. Jackson and his wife contained some partly digested food. The stomach, heart and kidneys were dilated and there was marked congestion. The bodies were healthy, showing that both were well nourished."

Dr. Wuest said that it was possible that cyanide of potassium had been employed. The police and the District Attorney at first went on the theory that Mr. Jackson and his wife had either committed suicide or had taken poison accidentally. This theory was decidedly weakened when the detectives were unable to find any bottle or other receptacle that had contained poison. Neither were there any indications that poison of any sort had been in the apartment.

There was nothing, in fact, but the dead bodies to indicate that anything had happened.

Both Mr. Jackson and his wife were found lying on the floor of the bathroom, partly dressed, so that it is believed that they had become ill after eating, and had gone into the bathroom for medicine, but had collapsed before they could get relief. Their friends, insisting that the couple did not commit suicide, pointed out that Mr. Jackson was wealthy, that a balance of $8,000 in one bank showed he was not pressed for ready cash and that there was no reason for them to kill themselves.

BANK DEPOSITS SEIZED IN ELOPEMENT SUIT

Couple Traced From England to New York City.

David Dunham, who is suing Cyril S. J. Lyons for the alienation of his wife's affections, attached bank deposits of the latter in excess of $7,000 through Deputy Sheriff Neilson, it became known yesterday by papers filed in the County Clerk's office. Dunham sets forth that he married Nora May Wood in England in 1915, and established a comfortable home in Caversham, Reading, where he lived happily until 1920. At this time he says the defendant eloped with Mrs. Dunham as the object of his affections.

On February 9, 1922, according to the plaintiff, Mrs. Dunham left home in company with Cyril Lyons, who is alleged to visit her parents in Rugby. Later, Dunham alleges, he learned that Lyons and Mrs. Dunham had sailed for France, and he followed the couple to this country and traced their subsequent movements to Buffalo, Chicago and Grand Rapids, where the two purchased an automobile and came to New York, where Lyons was to have employment as a salesman. Lyons left the city March 30, giving his forwarding address as 48 Pierce avenue, Everett, Mass.
